HISTORICAL SKETCH.

At the time of the formation of this church, in 1664, Newton was a part of Cambridge, and bore the name of Cambridge Village. The original name of the whole district now occupied by Cambridge, Newton, and portions of other towns adjoining, was New Town. At the time of the founding of Harvard College, in 1638, this name was changed to Cambridge. The part of the town which lay on the south side of Charles River, and which is now Newton and Brighton, was known by the Indian name Nonantum. Religious meetings began to be held on this side of the river, in 1654, from which time Nonantum was called Cambridge Village. It bore this name until 1679, when it was set off from Cambridge, and organized as an independent town. It was then called New Cambridge, until 1691, when it resumed the original name, New Town, which was gradually altered to Newtown and Newton.

In 1656 the inhabitants of Cambridge Village had become so numerous as to form a distinct congregation for public worship. There was a hall in the house of Edward Jackson, which stood near the present dividing-line between Newton and Brighton, in which their meetings may have been held.

Their first meeting-house was built in 1660, in the old burial-place, on the spot now occupied by the monument erected to the first settlers of the town. In the year following, they were released from paying church-rates to Cambridge. They were organized as a distinct church, July 20, 1664, during the ministry of Mr. Mitchell, the second pastor of the Shepard Church, in Cambridge, and were properly a colony from that church, though a considerable number were from other neighboring churches. The congregation was composed of about thirty families; and the church, of about eighty members, — forty male, and forty female.

On the same day, Mr. John Eliot, jun., son of the celebrated "Apostle Eliot," was ordained as its pastor. He had taken his degree at Cambridge in 1656, and began to preach in 1658. In Jackson's "History of Newton," from which many of the facts here presented are gathered, it is said to be "probable that he supplied the pulpit of the new meetinghouse in the village, much of the time previous to his ordination." In the Dorchester church-records it is stated that "Thomas Wiswall was dismissed from the Dorchester Church, June 5, 1664, for the beginning of a church in Cambridge Village, where Mr. John Eliot doth preach."

From this it appears that he was preacher to the people of Cambridge Village for some time before his ordination. The pastors of the Dorchester and Roxbury churches, Rev. Richard Mather, and Rev. John Eliot, the father of the pastor elect, were present at the ordination. The young pastor, then nearly twenty-eight years of age, had before him but a brief career. After a ministry of a little more than four years, he died Oct. 11, 1668, aged thirty-two, and was buried within a few feet of the pulpit where he preached. He died greatly lamented, both by his own people and by the Indians of Stoughton and Natick, to whom he often preached. Cotton Mather says of him, "He bore his father's name, and had his father's grace. He was a person of notable accomplishments, and a lively, zealous, acute preacher, not only to the English at New Cambridge, but also to the Indians thereabout."

Dissensions arose in the church after the death of Mr. Eliot; and it was more than six years before another minister was settled. This was Mr. Nehemiah Hobart, graduate of Harvard College, and son of the Rev. Peter Hobart of Hingham. He was ordained Dec. 23, 1674. He had, however, preached to the people two years and a half before he was settled, during which time he succeeded in healing the dissensions, and restoring harmony.

Dr. Homer accounts for the long delay of his ordination, on the ground of his connection with the college as a fellow and tutor.

Soon after the settlement of Mr. Hobart, the meeting-house was repaired and enlarged. Thus improved, it continued to serve the congregation until the year 1698, when a new meeting-house was erected "on the westerly side of Dedham road," nearly opposite the spot where the first meeting-house stood. From a record made nineteen years after this, we learn that the old meeting-house (the first) was still standing.

Mr. Hobart died Aug 25, 1712, in the sixty-fourth year of his age, having preached in the town a little more than forty years. The length of his ordained ministry was thirty-seven years and eight months. His epitaph, in Latin, is translated by Dr. Homer, as follows: —

"In this tomb are deposited the remains of the reverend and very learned teacher of divinity, Nehemiah Hobart, an estimable fellow of Harvard College, a highly faithful and watchful pastor of the Church of Newton for forty years. His singular gravity, humility, piety, and learning rendered him the object of deep veneration and ardent esteem to men of science and religion."

After the death of Mr. Hobart, the church was a little more than two years without a minister, when Mr. John Cotton, graduate of Harvard, great-grandson of the celebrated Rev. John Cotton of Boston, was ordained Nov. 3, 1714.

Measures soon began to be taken for the building of a third meeting-house, to occupy a position more central to the parish. The site of the present meeting-house was chosen, a house erected and ready for use upon sabbath, Nov. 5, 1721, when the first meeting was held in it, and a discourse preached by Mr. Cotton, from 1 Kings vi. 11–13.

The second house was sold, and removed to Waltham.

Two revivals occurred during Mr. Cotton's ministry, — one in 1727–28, when fifty were added to the church in the space of four months; one in 1741–42, when one hundred and four were added to the church in the space of ten months. This awakening probably began under the preaching of the celebrated Rev. Gilbert Tennent, who visited and preached in this place about February, 1741.

A few years after this, Nov. 8, 1748, Whitefield preached here, "before crowded and attentive audiences." Twenty-two years after, he preached here again, Sept. 20, 1770, in the time of Mr. Meriam. It is not known that his visits to Newton produced any very powerful impression.

Mr. Cotton died May 17, 1757, in the sixty-fourth year of his age, after a ministry of forty-two years and a half. The following is a part of Dr. Homer's translation of his epitaph: —

"Here lies the mortal part of the reverend and truly venerable John Cotton, lately the very faithful, prudent, and skilful pastor of the Church of Newton. He was eminent for the faculty of praying and preaching, was respected for his piety, and held in high and universal esteem for his pure and attractive virtues. His loss is especially deplored by his flock, to whom, even dead, he ceases not to preach."

Before the close of the year in which Mr. Cotton died, Mr. Jonas Meriam, a graduate of Harvard, was chosen to be his successor. He was ordained March 22, 1758, and was the fourth and last minister that was settled by the whole town.

In 1770 Mr. Meriam's house was burned, and with it the church-records, by which much of the early history of this ancient church was irrecoverably lost.

Mr. Meriam died Aug. 13, 1780, at the age of fifty, having preached in Newton twenty-two years and four months. His remains were conveyed to a tomb belonging to the family of Mrs. Meriam of Boston. There is, however, in the burying-ground, an inscription to his memory, prepared by Dr. Homer, and placed upon the same stone which commemorates Mr. Hobart. It describes him as "learned, mild, benevolent, and an example of patience."

The space of a year and six months intervened between the ministry of Mr. Meriam and that of Mr. Homer. During this interval, in October, 1781, twenty-five members of this church — twelve male and thirteen female — were dismissed to form the West Parish Church.

The following year, Feb. 13, 1782, Mr. Jonathan Homer, native of Boston, graduate of Harvard, was ordained as successor to Mr. Meriam.

A new meeting-house (the fourth) was dedicated,

Thursday, Nov. 21, 1805. The third house had been occupied eighty-four years.

A powerful revival occurred during the ministry of Dr. Homer, in 1827, in which year seventy-two persons were added to the church by profession, many of them heads of families.

From the year 1824, and onward, Dr. Homer was for many years engaged in an unwearied and enthusiastic study of the principal English translations of the Bible. His aim was to improve the text of the common version. This he critically compared with the text of Tyndale, Coverdale, Rogers, the Cranmer Bible, the Genevan Bible, the Bishops' Bible, and with the Hebrew and Greek originals. It was his intention to publish a history of the English versions of the Bible, from that of Wycliffe to that of 1611. He was eminently qualified for such an undertaking. The late Prof. B. B. Edwards of Andover speaks (Bib. Repos. October, 1835) of the "long and indefatigable attention" which Dr. Homer had given to this subject, and adds, "He is more intimately acquainted with it than any other individual in the country."

The pastoral relation between Dr. Homer and this church was dissolved April 17, 1839, after having existed fifty-seven years and two months.

He lived, after this, a little more than four years, receiving an annual stipend from the church and society, and occasionally performing some ministerial labor. He died Aug. 11, 1843, aged eighty-four, having been an ordained minister sixty-one years and a half. The following is the inscription upon his monument: —

"Erected by his congregation as a grateful tribute to the many virtues of a devoted pastor, who watched over them with tender interest, Christian diligence, and parental affection, more than sixty years."

During the last eleven years and a half, nearly, of Dr. Homer's active ministry, the Rev. James Bates was associated with him as colleague pastor. Mr. Bates was ordained Nov. 14, 1827, and continued his labors until April 17, 1839; his pastoral relation, and that of Dr. Homer, being dissolved on the same day.

Under their united ministry, an extensive revival was enjoyed in the years 1831–32. In 1832, sixty-five were received into the church by profession, and eleven by letter.

More than a year of the time between the dismission of Mr. Bates and the installation of his successor, the pulpit was supplied by the late Rev. S. S. Smith.

Rev. William Bushnell was installed May 24, 1842, and resigned Dec. 13, 1846. During his ministry, the church sent out its second colony, June 18, 1845, to form the Eliot Church, at Newton Corner. Ten males and twenty-one females were dismissed for this purpose. Three others soon after took letters to the Eliot Church.

After the resignation of Mr. Bushnell, the church remained without a pastor one year, within which time a new meeting-house (the fifth) was completed. It was dedicated March 24, 1847.

Mr. D. L. Furber was ordained Dec. 1, 1847, and is the present pastor.

The meeting-house was enlarged, and a new chapel built, in the latter part of the year 1854. A new Congregational church was formed at Newtonville, Sept. 8, 1868, to which nine of our members took letters.

In 1869–70, the meeting-house and chapel were again enlarged.

Within the past twelve or fourteen years, five young men have entered the Christian ministry from this church, — Rev. G. R. Brackett, Rev. C. A. Kingsbury, Rev. J. A Towle, Rev. F. D. Sargent, and Rev. E. P. Kingsbury.

This church has had eight pastors. The intervals of time in which it has been without a minister amount to only about twelve years. Nearly the same length of time, it had two associated ministers; so that the aggregate term of ministerial labor which it has enjoyed would about cover the whole period of its history.

All the pastors but one (the seventh) received here their ordination; and this was the place of their first labors in a settled ministry. The first five finished their labors here, died here, and with the exception of Mr. Meriam, already mentioned, were buried here. "Their sepulchres are with us unto this day:" all of them not far from the spot where the first meeting-house stood.

FORM OF ADMISSION.

BELOVED in the Lord, you are about to confess Christ before men, and to enter into covenant with God and with his people. We trust you appreciate the solemnity and blessedness of this confession, and that you make it in humble reliance upon the grace which is sufficient for us all.

CONFESSION OF FAITH.

1. We believe that there is one God, the Creator and Ruler of the universe, infinite in all natural and moral perfections, and revealed to us as the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

2. That the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are given by inspiration of God, and are the only sufficient rule of religious faith and practice.

3. That mankind are by nature a fallen and sinful race, destitute of holiness, and cannot be saved without regeneration by the Holy Ghost.

4. That the Lord Jesus Christ, the Word made flesh, has by his humiliation, sufferings, and death, made atonement for the sins of the world, so that God can be just, and the justifier of him that believeth in Jesus.

5. That the benefits of this atonement are freely offered to all, upon the sole condition of repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

6. That it is the duty of all true believers to unite with Christ's visible church, and observe his ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper.

7. That the present life is the only period of human probation; that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust; and that Jesus Christ shall judge the world in righteousness; and that then the wicked shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal. [Do you thus believe?]

COVENANT.

In the presence of God, his holy angels, and this assembly, you do now solemnly yet joyfully avouch the Lord Jehovah, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, to be your God, your Ruler, Redeemer, and Sanctifier, giving up yourselves, and all you have, to him and to his service forever. [Do you thus covenant?]

Some of you were baptized in infancy. Do you now accept the act which was performed for you by believing parents, and adopt it as your own? [Baptize.]

With like solemnity and joy you enter into covenant with this church, promising to observe its sacred ordinances, to walk with us in love, and to promote, so far as in you lies, our peace, edification, and purity. [Do you thus covenant?]

We, then, the members of this church, do gladly and affectionately welcome you to our fellowship in Christ, giving thanks to God, who, we trust, has called you by his grace, and pledging to you our sympathy, our help, and our prayers, that you may evermore increase in the knowledge of him, and in fitness for his heavenly kingdom. We welcome you to the great household of faith on earth; and to the fellowship of the greater multitude in heaven, who have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

In token of our confidence and sympathy, we offer you the hand of fellowship.*

Now unto Him who is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

* Here the minister may repeat some appropriate text of Scripture.

RULE 12. — Private differences between the members, public violations of Christian decorum and morality, breaches of the Church Covenant, shall be dealt with according to the customary rules for administering discipline in Congregational Churches, conforming in all cases to the directions of our Lord in Matt. xviii. 15, 16. Persons duly convicted of such offences may be admonished, suspended, or excommunicated, according to the aggravation of the offence; but no motion for excommunication shall be definitely voted upon at the same meeting at which it was offered.

When objection is made, and generally in all cases affecting the settlement or dismission of the Pastor, the discipline of a member, or other matter of importance, the business shall be transacted only at a special meeting called for that purpose, said call specifying also the business proposed to be done.

RULE 15. — These rules may be altered or amended at any Annual Meeting of the Church ; or at a meeting specially called for that purpose ; but no change shall be made in the Articles of Faith or Covenant, except by two-thirds of the brethren present at such Annual Meeting, said proposed alteration having been previously announced from the pulpit.
